The World Scientific Annual Review of Cancer Immunology, WSARCI, is a unique journal aimed at clinicians and scientists publishing research across the field of immuno-oncology. The journal will focus on research from South-East Asia and the wider APAC region, serving as a platform to highlight and bring global attention to research from this community. WSARCI is part of World Scientific's Annual Review journal collection (more information overleaf), and has been endorsed by the Singapore Society of Oncology (SSO).

AIMS AND SCOPE

The World Scientific Annual Review of Cancer Immunology (WSARCI) is a unique journal that serves as a forum for clinicians and scientists to publish their work across the field of immuno-oncology. WSARCI aims to serve the community by publishing basic, translational, and clinical research that progresses the field of cancer immunology.

Cancer care and research in Asia faces unique challenges in contrast to other global regions, in various perspectives such as disease subtypes (Asian cancers), access to technologies, and socio-economic issues.

While we welcome submissions from researchers worldwide, the journal also seeks to highlight research from South-East Asia and the wider APAC region. WSARCI aims to promote and encourage reporting of cancer care and research in the region, bringing global attention to key topics in the field of cancer immunology.

Background on World Scientific

World Scientific Publishing Co was established in Singapore in 1981 by Professor KK Phua. Today, the company employs about 200 staff at its headquarters in Singapore and 450 globally. It has offices in New Jersey, London, Munich, Geneva, Tokyo, Hong Kong, Taipei, Beijing, Shanghai, Tianjin and Chennai. It has established itself as the largest English-language international STEM publisher in the Asia-Pacific region, publishing about 600 new book titles per year and maintaining 170+ journals in various fields.

WSARCI is part of World Scientific's Annual Review journal series!

World Scientific is proud to present our Annual Review journal collection. Launched in 2022, journals in this series highlight key topics across the field of science, engineering and medicine, publishing research and review articles in an annual volume. We currently have 9 titles covering topics such as particle physics, vaccine design, Islamic finance, functional materials and biomechanics, plus more planned for launch in 2023 and beyond. Journals in the series will benefit from individual marketing, as well as being sold as part of the collection package. Journals in this collection will also be available to institutions that subscribe to all World Scientific journals.
